

OPINION

Opinion: Attention, President Trump: Your new FBI nominee doesn't think the Russia probe is a witch hunt

FBI director nominee Christopher Wray testifies before the Senate Judiciary Committee on July 12. (Pablo Martinez Monsivais / Associated Press)

By Michael McGough

July 12, 2017 11:10 AM PT

In normal times, it wouldn't be headline news if a nominee for director of the FBI rejected the notion of taking a personal loyalty oath to the president or refused to characterize as a "witch hunt" an investigation into highly plausible allegations that a hostile foreign country interfered in a U.S. election.

But when Christopher A. Wray, President Trump's nominee to head the bureau, took those positions a

12ft.io - You can talk 3x faster than you can type. Checkout our new dictation app.